

Susan Fitzell's Intro for Co-teaching event

Do you want engaging co-teaching strategies that work for all your students?

Would you like a lesson planning technique that helps you get the most out of your instructional time?

Would you like to be able to implement intervention strategies for students who need them while accelerating students who are ready to go deeper?

Our speaker today, has been teaching a LONNNNNGGG time. She's spent the past two dozen+ years coaching co-teachers in every demographic in the United States. She has written over a dozen books for teachers, parents, and students, and is one of only 650 certified speaking professionals in the world today.

She's a black belt in kickboxing, a student of kung fu, and a competitive ballroom dancer. Her family prides themselves in being geeks and her two adult children, one with learning challenges, have both earned degrees in mechanical engineering using strategies that she will share today.

Please join me in welcoming, from Manchester, NH, speaker, author and occasional sky-diver, Susan Fit-ZELLE.
